

New from the Bestselling author of
First They Killed My Father comes
LUCKY CHILD

On Sale April 12, 2005

In this lyrical sequel to the bestselling memoir First They Killed My Father, Loung Ung describes her school years in Vermont as a Cambodian refugee, revealing what it was like to grapple with post-traumatic stress and cultural assimilation. In alternating chapters, lending an unusual perspective, she gives voice to her sister's experience as a genocide survivor left behind in rural Cambodia.

About Loung Ung

Loung Ung is National Spokesperson for the "Campaign for a Landmine Free World," a program of the Vietnam Veterans of America Foundation. VVAF founded the International Campaign to Ban Landmines which was the recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1997. Ung lectures extensively throughout the United States and appears regularly in the media.

Praise for First They Killed My Father

"[Ung] tells her stories straightforwardly, vividly, and without any strenuous effort to explicate their importance, allowing the stories themselves to create their own impact."

— New York Times

"A riveting memoir...an important, moving work that those who have suffered cannot afford to forget and those who have been spared cannot afford to ignore."

— San Francisco Chronicle

"Loung Ung plunges her readers into a Kafkaesque world...and forces them to experience the mass murder, starvation and disease that claimed half her beloved family. In the end, the horror of the Cambodian genocide is matched only by the author's indomitable spirit."

— Iris Chang, author of The Rape of Nanking
